

3

SEARCH & APPLY

START YOUR SEARCH.

Pay attention to the job description.

When you read a job description, pay close attention to the keywords for insight into what kind of practice they are and if their core values match yours.

Apply early.

Timing is everything. Sign up for job alerts to help you stay ahead of the game. You'll be among the first to know about a job and one of the first to apply.

Apply often.

Job searching is like dating – the more you get out there and engage, the faster you will find your best match. Even if you aren't sure about the position, it's always good to give someone a try, stay connected in the industry and practice your interviewing skills.

What You Can Do While Job Searching

Already have a job?

Dedicate extra time to job searching outside of your regular work week, in which case, that may be all you have time for. Plan on it being your second job. It's a numbers game.

DentalPost, the nation's largest dental job board, increases your odds of finding the right fit.

Not currently working?

Consider temping. Temping is a great way to "test drive" a practice and see if you like the practice's production and protocols, as well as their overall vibe and culture. There are several advantages to temping as a full-time or part-time career including flexibility, control of your career, as well as the independence that comes with being self-employed.

Keep growing and learning.

It's important to stay on top of industry trends and standards by maintaining your certifications or getting new ones. Doing so is a sign you are a conscientious care provider and lifelong learner. These are very desirable traits in a potential team member.

DID YOU KNOW...

DentalPost provides a Continuing Education Tracker that sends you alerts and reminders so that you never lapse on your certifications.